

AJGP IS SEEKING ASSOCIATE EDITORIAL BOARD MEMBERS

The American Journal of Geriatric Psychiatry is soliciting applications for Associate Editorial Board Member positions on the journal's Editorial Board. This 2-year position is designed for early stage investigators and clinicians who are committed to a career in geriatric psychiatry research and/or practice. Associate Members of the AJGP Editorial Board will be supported by a mentor who is established in the field of geriatric psychiatry, and will work with the AJGP's editor-in-chief to gain experience participating in key aspects of the editorial process, including the following: screening submissions, reviewing articles, observing editorial decision-making, participating in the creation of AJGP issues, partaking in the journal's quarterly and annual Editorial Board meetings, contributing to AJGP's social media activities, and potentially co-authoring relevant editorials.

Applicants will have completed their terminal degrees and are either junior faculty on post-doctoral training grants or at a similar level with regards to post-degree training. Investigators and clinicians from across a range of specialties such as psychology, sociology, social work, nursing, psychiatry, pharmacy, neuroscience and others are encouraged to apply for this position. There is no financial compensation for this position.

To apply for this Associate Member position, please send the following: 1) a 1- or 2-page statement of interest specifying your interest in a career in geriatric psychiatry/mental health and how the Associate Member position would help you achieve your goals; 2) a CV; and 3) a letter of recommendation (preferably from a current AJGP Editorial Board member or Triage Editor who can indicate their willingness to mentor the Associate Member) to Nancy Nicklas (geriatricpsych@stellarmed.com) Senior Editor, AJGP, 20 North St., Plymouth, MA 02360.

Applications will be accepted until December 15, 2022.
